

Blues must perk up

WYCOMBE must lift themselves after that shattering defeat by Hayes for their Berger Isthmian League visit to bottom club Leytonstone tomorrow (Saturday).

Grange Road is never the most attractive place to go but on a bleak March day after a depressing defeat, it must seem like the grimmest ground on earth.

At least Blues should keep up their winning league sequence, as the Stones have won only three Premier Division games all season, and seem certain to be relegated.

However Leytonstone will be boosted by Tuesday night's result, when they defeated

Leatherhead 1-0 thanks to a goal by Terry Hurlock — their first success of 1979.

Their defensive form has improved since the signing three weeks ago of goalkeeper Dave Danson, the former West Ham reserves player, who represented the Bournemouth first team a few times this season. Since his arrival the side have conceded only two goals in four games.

Included in their side is the former Leatherhead and Enfield player Peter McGillicuddy who returned after a short spell at Southbury Road.

One man who will not be playing is the veteran Les Tilley, who has been much troubled by injury and looks like leaving in the near future to take over a post at Enfield.

Wanderers have another long trip on Monday evening when they play mid-table side Croydon, who have proved a difficult side to beat on their own ground.
